Dumas-Blackmon wins National Entrepreneurship award

The National Consortium for Entrepreneurship Education recently awarded Laketa Dumas-Blackmon the National Entrepreneurship 101 Award for her innovative inclusion program at Kettering West Wing High School, a Detroit Public School. She received an expense paid trip to The Annual Entrepreneurship Conference (in Norfolk, Va.) to present her entrepreneurship project program to over 400 teachers all over United States.

year of the pilot program between two Detroit Public Schools Kettering West Wing High School and Garvey Academy.

Back in May, the students raised $6000 to go to United States and Patent and Trademark and Hershey Park and they met their goal and were able to attend the ultimate entrepreneurship exploration. She was a presenter at the Norfolk conference to infuse teachers on to motivate their students to not give-up on their entrepreneur dreams.

This year marks the third
